

Concealed Carry Classes: What to Expect and Why They Still Are Relevant

Thinking about taking concealed carry classes?

With Florida's new Constitutional Carry law, you might wonder if it's necessary to take a class.

Carrying a concealed weapon is a significant responsibility that goes beyond just having the right to do so.

It's about ensuring your safety, the safety of others, and being prepared for any situation that may arise.

This article dives into what you can expect from a concealed carry class and why obtaining a concealed carry license in Florida remains a smart choice.

Constitutional Carry Law vs Concealed Carry License

Constitutional Carry Law

Florida's Constitutional Carry law, effective July 1, 2023, allows individuals to carry a concealed firearm without needing a permit, provided they are 21 or older and meet specific criteria, such as not being a convicted felon.

Concealed Carry License (CWFL)

A Concealed Weapons and Firearms License (CWFL) permits individuals to legally carry a concealed firearm in public places.

To obtain a CWFL, one must complete a firearms safety training course, submit fingerprints with an application to the State for a comprehensive background check, and pay the necessary fees.

The license is valid for seven years and can be renewed by paying the appropriate fees.

Importance of a Concealed Carry License:

- Recognition: A Florida CWFL is recognized in over 30 other states, allowing the bearer to legally carry a firearm concealed when they are outside of Florida.
- Background Checks: With a CWFL, purchasing firearms can be faster and easier by allowing for the mandatory 3-day waiting period to be waived when buying a gun.
- Training: A CWFL requires a firearms safety course, providing essential training on safe handling, legal responsibilities, and proper firearm operation.
- Legal Restrictions: Certain areas, like hospitals, police stations, courthouses, federal buildings, and more are still restricted to carrying a firearm; even constitutionally. This information and more are usually provided in a reputable class taught by a credible and professionally trained instructor.

Why Take a Concealed Carry Class Before Carrying a Firearm?

Concealed carry classes provide essential training, especially for a beginner gun owner.

These classes typically will teach foundational training such as:

- safe firearm handling
- how to hold a gun correctly, trigger discipline, proper

- grip, and more
- legal aspects of carrying a concealed weapon and usage of force
- situational awareness and preparedness
- conflict de-escalation techniques

By taking a concealed carry class, you become a well-prepared and better-informed gun owner.
